DISCOVERIES

It was a cold evening in November. Gran was reading and Hazel was playing with her new doll's house. Without warning, Hazel asked a question: 'Our teacher says there are seven basic notes in music and all tunes are made up using these seven notes. Can that be true?'

Gran thought for a while. 'Do, re, mi, fa, so, la, ti, do. Yes, seven notes followed by the first one again at an octave higher,' she recalled. 'Teacher is correct. All tunes are composed using some or all of the seven notes.'

Hazel was satisfied and there was silence for a while. Then, out of the blue, she said, 'There are only 26 letters in the alphabet, right? So how come we have so many words?'

Gran put down her book. 'Yes,' she replied, 'there may be only 26 letters in the alphabet but they can be arranged in different ways to compose lots of words.'

'Would the number of words go up as far as infinity?' asked Hazel.

'I'm sure it would be there or thereabouts,' Gran replied, hoping she wouldn't be asked to provide proof.

'Have all the words in the whole world been discovered?' asked Hazel.

'There are a lot of words in the dictionary, certainly,' said Gran, 'but I think there may still be a few out there that haven't been discovered yet.'

After a few minutes, Hazel asked, 'Is "springle" a word?'

'Let's see,' answered Gran, taking a large dictionary down from the shelf. 'It should be somewhere between "spring" and "sprinkle".' They searched the dictionary but there was no sign of 'springle'. 'You've discovered a new word!' said Gran. 'What does it mean?'

Without hesitation, Hazel declared, 'Here's a springle. It's the clip I use to keep my doll's hair out of her eyes.'

Later Hazel and Gran went on to discover other new words such as 'fromlet' and 'wizzle'. ■

COLOURS

WHY IS THE SKY BLUE?

The sun's rays appear to be clear or white in colour. In reality, they are made up of all the colours of the rainbow. The sun's rays pass through the barrier of the atmosphere that surrounds Earth where they are absorbed by molecules of gas and water. These molecules 'give off' the colour they absorb. The blue colour in the sun's rays is the colour that is absorbed the fastest, and so it is the colour that we see when we look up at the sky on a sunny day.

WHY IS BLOOD RED?

Blood is made up of four parts: plasma, white blood cells, platelets and red blood cells. Plasma helps you grow and gives you energy. White blood cells fight germs and infections. Platelets help form blood clots to stop bleeding. Red blood cells carry oxygen to every part of your body. The oxygen and iron in red blood cells give blood its red colour.

WHY ARE LEAVES GREEN?

The leaves of trees and plants make their food using sunlight. This is called photosynthesis. Without photosynthesis there would be no plants on Earth. Without plants there would be no animals and no humans! Leaves contain a chemical called chlorophyll which allows them to turn sunlight into food using photosynthesis. Chlorophyll is a pigment that gives leaves their green colour. ■

QUICK QUESTIONS

- 1 What must the sun's rays pass through before they reach us?
- 2 What colour in sunlight is absorbed the fastest by the atmosphere?
- 3 What are the four parts of blood?
- 4 What part of blood gives it its red colour?
- 5 What chemical gives leaves their green colour?
